Exhibition at the 11th IAASS International Space Safety Conference at Osaka JAPAN
26-28 October 2021

The International Association for the Advancement of Space Safety is the premier organization dedicated to furthering international cooperation and scientific advancement in the field of space systems safety and sustainability. IAASS is Permanent Observer at the United Nations Committee on the Peaceful Uses of Outer Space (COPUOS). Since 2005, the association has been conducting international conferences every 18 months alternatively in Europe and America. The conferences are a unique opportunity to reflect and exchange information on a number of space safety and sustainability topics of national and international interest.

For the first time in Asia, JAXA is co-hosting the 11th IAASS Conference “Managing Risk in Space” at Osaka Japan in the period 26-28 October 2021. Please visit the conference website for detailed information.

The IAASS Conferences usually attract about 200 space safety specialists from all over the world, including from major space agencies such as NASA, ESA, JAXA, CNES, DLR, as well as from major aerospace industry such as Lockheed, Boeing, Airbus, Ariane Group, and from academy and defence. The conference also encourages the active participation of university students.

The 11th IAASS Conference, being the first in Asia, is expected to attract new participants from the entire Asia-Pacific region. For the sake of making, capabilities, products and services in the field of space safety and sustainability better known, the conference organizers have prepared opportunities for exhibition at the conference. A great opportunity to get your business known and to network with conference participants.
